The focus of these Open Houses is on reviewing new information and possible changes to the Central Corridor LRT project since the last public open houses in January / February 2008, including changes to the project as it was described in the Supplemental Draft EIS.

Information available for public review includes detailed engineering plans, property and access impacts, location of traction power substations, and other impacts specific to properties next to the Central Corridor. Attendees will have an opportunity to talk one-on-one with project engineers and planners. No formal presentation is planned.
